The Presidential Visit

ATLANTA October 18. The morning was [illegible] showers [illegible] storm. The streets bearing the marks of yesterday's [illegible] gaiety, yet [illegible] crowds [illegible] thought of those who [illegible] Others [illegible] got more and [illegible] to check the [illegible] it having been [illegible] [illegible] their [illegible] baggage [illegible] the crowds [illegible] their [illegible] came.

At 1 p m the presidential party [illegible] ident of the exposition called [illegible] president's rooms and [illegible] the [illegible] dent, Mrs. Cleveland [illegible] Governor Gordon [illegible] General Walker [illegible] capitol where [illegible] were received by Governor Gordon and [illegible] reading governors. The [illegible] of the state, members of [illegible] and staff United States officials [illegible] authorities and members of the legislature were presented to the party's guests. The ceremonial over the distinguished visitors were escorted by Governor Gordon, Senators Brown and Colquitt and accompanied by visiting governors and many other people of distinction proceeded to the exposition grounds. The [illegible] national salute was fired as the procession entered the gates of the enclosure and proceeded to the speaker's stand, where H. W. Grady, vice president of the exposition, in a brief but eloquent speech extended a welcome to the president.

The president in reply gave a brief sketch of Atlanta's early history, its rapid growth and terrible destruction during the war of the rebellion. "I have lately seen," he said, "evidences of the activity and perseverance of the people of the United States in the creation of prosperous and bustling cities, and in overcoming difficulties that are inseparable from new settlements and the growth of civilization. But I have come to me that an element of heroism is added by people who view without despair the destruction of all they have or ought to begin again to build their waste places, and who in spite of the greatest disadvantages evince a determination to reach their destiny. In twenty two years a new [illegible] Atlanta has been made, [illegible] comparably larger, more prosperous and [illegible] SPEECH OF [illegible] PRESIDENT. [illegible] place as first among the cities of a great state, her constantly increasing interests and other large manufacturing interests are evidences of the courage and enterprise of her people. They may well be proud of the work of their hands, not alone the glory of their achievements is left to their sole gratification. All their countrymen may congratulate them upon [illegible] what has been done by the people of [illegible] America."

After the president concluded there were calls for Governor Gordon, who spoke briefly. The public reception of the [illegible] was then [illegible].

From the speaking stand the [illegible] party was conducted to the pavilion, where [illegible] which they partook [illegible] hour. The main hall was so crowded that the wait to be [illegible].

Lunch was served at the [illegible] of the Gentlemen's Driving club of [illegible] then the party went to the hotel where they remained till 6 o'clock. Continued on the party dined with Governor [illegible] dancing [illegible] Mrs. Cleveland and Mrs. Avery were [illegible]. This morning the entire party will be [illegible] by the Capital City club from 9 till 12 o'clock.

A local paper is authority for the statement that a confederate flag [illegible] was [illegible] the decorations of the town. It [illegible] "At No. 12 Wheat street [illegible] one to the breeze the red white and red with thirteen stars, that emblem of the dead confederacy. Some kind hand decorated a picture of the great chieftain Hon. Jefferson Davis, with the confederate colors. Old soldiers when they pass by take off their hats and in their hearts all southerners do this reverently."

Last night, not long after the arrival of the president at his room in the hotel a ferocious personage approached the door and being denied admission by [illegible] placed there by Governor Gordon's orders, said in a tone apparently intended to be heard by the president "I wish you would inform Mr. Cleveland that if Georgians are to be barred out from shaking hands with the president of the United States by sailors at his chamber door, by God, sir, he had better go back to Washington. Jeff Davis will be here next week, and there will be no sailors between him and the citizens of Georgia, sir." If an affront was intended the language failed for the present to [illegible] it. The story got around [illegible] and the witnesses were greatly [illegible].

The Knights of Labor.

MINNEAPOLIS, October 18.—The general assembly Knights of Labor in executive session this morning passed a [illegible] that the assembly adjourn at the close of its present session [illegible] all speeches be limited to three minutes. The rules were then suspended and the committee on strikes and boycotts made another report which was referred to the general executive board. Section 5 of the constitution was amended in the sense that all local assemblies must attach themselves to either a state, district or national assembly. Mileage

FRANK W. HOWBERT, Secretary.

It is to be hoped that the quarantine officers at New York will exercise the greatest vigilance in their treatment of the cases of SMALL-POX which are brought to that city from Europe. If this disease should gain a foothold among the New York tenements the consequences would be indeed frightful to contemplate.

The New York World truly remarks that, "It is all very well to stop collar button raids and the little fortune's as the law permits against them. But the great wheel of finance and Wall street still revels in the Chicago stakes flourish high above the statutes. An innocent slipper rattle is at once suppressed. But a speculator's corner in the necessities of life goes unrebuked. The camel is unnoticed, while the gnat is prosecuted. What a scathing satire on the inequalities of our laws!"

The power of invention to which the cause of civilization gave rise, has recently been amply demonstrated by the action of several eastern parties. The government has adopted a policy of emblazoning odd killing diseased cattle and horseflesh so the carcass can be sold. The people above should have received the benefit of buying cold cows at $20 each, then putting a diseased animal on them for the purpose of selling the animal and the cow for the purpose of cattle to the government at a profit. If such persons can be apprehended the agents of the eastern humane societies will have a splendid opportunity to put the laws prohibiting cruelty to animals into execution. The penalty on each increases as the above could be proven.

The success of the operations of the present civil service law are studied, the more does it become apparent that the law is a public benefit, if it is not a partisan blessing. Where its provisions have been faithfully carried out the best results have always been attained. The [illegible] of Land the cause of good government advanced. A striking illustration of the folly of the clerks who are now filling positions in eastern government offices was recently shown in an examination of subordinate clerks for promotion in the New York custom house. The results of this examination gave conclusive proof of the superiority of the competitive over the patronage system of appointment. A very large number of the clerks who had entered the custom house by means of the civil service law passed the examination with high averages. On the contrary those clerks who owed their positions to their political influence or their exertions in local politics exhibited a degree of ignorance and inapitude which was indeed painful. A very great part of the examination will be the discharge of about seventy-five of the latter class. Such results as the above fully vindicate the theory of the cause of civil service reform in its application to the practical affairs of our national government. The same practical business principles as applied to the administration of the functions of our government the less will we have of dishonesty and fraud in the use of public trust and responsibility.

All advocates of honest government in municipal as well as in state and national affairs will be glad to see Chicago District Attorney Martine of New York and Grinnell of Chicago for their successful efforts in bringing to justice men who for the past few years have been using their positions as the plunderers of the people of those cities. In prosecution, conviction and punishment be it far that these officers of the public be either slack or insincere in their duties, and a sincerity of purpose which is rarely found in the people's servants. It is no wonder that they have incurred the enmity and hatred of the local politicians of their respective parties. For [illegible]

[illegible] these avenues of gain to the ward worker and primary manipulators, they have had a great measure stripped from the influence and power. But if the patriotic men opposed to them the people are just as strongly in favor of and among them and these [illegible] the appreciation of the valuable [illegible] which have been the cause of good government. The people in New York and Chicago have adopted different methods of expressing their gratitude to Messrs. Martine and Grinnell. In New York there is a general desire to reward Mr. Martine by a [illegible] ship in the county [illegible] would [illegible] offices [illegible] prosecutor to [illegible] for [illegible] ing and carrying [illegible] cases in the courts of [illegible] Judge [illegible] They [illegible] efforts of Mr. De Lancey Nicoll, Mr. Martine's assistant, and most undoubtedly assure one of the shoulder [illegible] take the responsibility. The assistantship [illegible] Grinnell [illegible] Mr. Martine. A large share of the credit for the conviction of the New York boodlers [illegible] Mr. [illegible] Mr. Martine. Mr. Martine will be Mr. Martine's successor, and Mr. Nicoll is prosecuting [illegible] couple of good government would receive little encouragement if Mr. Martine [illegible] the people of New York give [illegible] full [illegible] conviction for the [illegible] except that for the judgeship. In Chicago Mr. Grinnell is [illegible] to see the same [illegible] to whether he shall accept the [illegible] ship to which he was elected. Mr. Grinnell's work of purifying the municipal government of Chicago has hardly begun. While he lives to some extent broken the county ring, the dregs of the city's legislative body offers a fruitful field of investigation. If the example which Messrs. Martine, Nicoll, and Grinnell have set as public prosecutors should be followed by similar officials throughout the country the days of municipal and national corruption would soon be at an end. Their work has done much to encourage the friends of municipal reform throughout the country. It is to be sincerely hoped that their days of usefulness will not be thus suddenly ended by following the counsels of corrupt and designing politicians.

Why They Left.

"Most of the people who come here [illegible] with an air of embarrassment. The speaker was Mr. James S. Bird, who has charge of the marriage license office of the Orphans' Court. "The fact is," he continued, "when a man comes in with every-day appearance at us here we set him down as one who has been married before. Men new to the business can't very well affect indifference under such circumstances. It is really funny to see how some of them fidget around and shuffle when we question is put to them. As a rule the women show more firmness than the men.

"There was one of the fair sex here the other day, though, that was very much agitated when I gave her the blank to make oath that she forgot to return it to me, and it was not until the lady moved sixth and Walnut streets on her way home that she discovered the [illegible] under her arm. An old fellow who called here soon didn't learn that he had left us for there until he was a block away. The [illegible] was a peculiar [illegible] he was born in [illegible] sure he was 75 years old. We see some queer people here."

Extensive Fire.

SYRACUSE, New York, October 17.—A fire to-night destroyed the building, stock of [illegible] Empire block, the dry goods house of George C. Young & Bro. and the hardware store of Lester B. Knox & Co. The losses will range [illegible] $200,000, with insurance of about one-half.

DAYTON, Ohio, October 17.—At a meeting it is learned the ministers' papers and [illegible] Dayton [illegible] the town is greatly shaken.

Mitchell's Bail.

NEW YORK, October 17.—A sporting paper has received the following telegram:

LONDON, October 17.—Jockey Mitchell has posted a forfeit and [illegible] race to fight Jones [illegible] the Lord in private ring [illegible] for £500 a side. Should however, Sullivan accept Mitchell's challenge [illegible] can follow the match, but not for less than £1,000 a side.

Virginia Officers at Liberty.

WASHINGTON, October 18.—[illegible] Attorney General Miller [illegible] ment on the [illegible] of the Richmond [illegible] Attorney General Aylett and other impounded state officers of Virginia will be sent down for trial in Meckle on November [illegible] and that in the while the prisoners shall be released on their own recognizances in the sum of $1,000.

Cable's Remedy.

LONDON, October 18.—Wilfrid Lawson, Liberal chief whip in the House of Commons, in a letter to Mr. Gladstone suggesting that the government instead of embarking in the Rosebery policy of land purchase, help discontented Irish families to immigrate to that [illegible] country.

A Great Bank Failure.

LONDON, October 18.—Despatches from Melbourne, the capital of the Australian province of Victoria, announce the failure of the Federal Bank of Australia, with liabilities of £3,000,000. The failure is the result of unlawful speculations. Directors Sprague, Dowsley and Winchcombe have left the country. The shareholders will be called upon for £100 each. The Bank of Victoria has suspended payment. The Bank of New South Wales has suspended payment. The Bank of Australasia has suspended payment. The Bank of New Zealand has suspended payment. His Wonderful Jersey Cow Noble and His Perchoron Horses—Notes of Interesting and Also Miscellaneous Kind.

[Special Correspondence.]

Washington, Dec. 30.—Senator Palmer of Michigan is one of the most successful and prosperous farmers in the United States. He has a fine farm of 1,000 acres near Detroit, which he has made famous by the high character of the stock he has raised upon it. He has been a breeder of fine cattle, horses and sheep for many years, and has taken a great interest in the improvement of the various breeds of domestic animals. His farm is one of the best managed in the country, and it is a model of neatness and thrift. Senator Palmer is a man of wealth, and he has made his farm a pleasant home for himself and family. He has a fine house, with all the modern conveniences, and his barns and stables are models of their kind. Everything about the place is in order, and the whole farm looks as if it were a private park. Senator Palmer is a man of fine taste, and he has surrounded himself with all the comforts of life. He is a lover of nature, and he has a keen appreciation of the beauties of the country. He is a man of culture, and he has a large library of books and periodicals.
